By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

PARIS—Leaders of the exiled Polish Government are reported to have revived the question of large-scale Jewish emigration from a restored Poland and are seeking negotiations on the subject with Jewish leaders in London and New York.

Jewish leaders have refused so far to enter into such negotiations on the ground that Jews are entitled to equality and reject any idea of forced "evacuation." The organs of the federations of Polish Jews in France and Belgium publish articles attacking the emigration demand.

The Association of Jewish War Veterans of Poland has issued a declaration expressing faith in the Government's promise of equal rights in a restored Poland and pledging loyalty to the Government. The Nazi occupation of Poland has stricken the Jews both as Jews and as citizens, the declaration said, and the Polish Jews will not spare their property or blood in fighting for a Poland free of racial and religious discrimination.

Polish Jewish leaders here urged the Government to initiate Polish-language broadcasts to Poland warning the population against Nazi incitement to anti-Jewish excesses.

Final Report Set For Noon Friday; No Extension Seen

Without in any way attempting to mask their feelings, drive leaders in the 1940 Jewish Welfare Fund expressed great disappointment as only $113,440.75, or 75 per cent, of the $151,160 goal was reported at the last meeting, Wednesday, in the Illinois Building. The final report meeting at noon today will end the drive, Louis J. Borinstein, drive chairman, told workers Wednesday, as he and G. A. Efromson urged a redoubling of efforts.

"Indianapolis has never fallen down on its responsibilities in the past," Mr. Efromson declared, as reports showed that only 1,584 donations had been turned in by the time of the Wednesday meeting, while last year something over 1,800 individual contributions had been reported at the same meeting. Total number of cards reported in the 1939 campaign was 2,391, it was said.

Two teams in the Men's Division and three in the Women's Division have already gone over the top. In the Men's Division, Team No. 1, Charles Feibleman and Jules Medias, captains, reported 110 per cent of their quota, and Team No. 15, L. Mossler and Ben Bliden, captains, led the entire Men's Division with 123 per cent.

The Women's Division paced the men throughout the drive. Team No. 1, Mrs. Ferd Born and Mrs. E. K. Fisher, captains, reported 103 per cent. Top honors were taken by Team No. 2, captained by Mrs. M. L. Jacobs and Mrs. Lewis Levy, who brought in 144 per cent of their quota. Closely following was Team No. 3, with captains Mrs. Wilfred Borinstein, Mrs. Allan Kahn and Mrs. Phil Adler reporting 128 per cent.

Division standings at Wednesday noon were as follows:

	Pct.
Special gifts .....	$90,519 80
Men's Division .....	10,859 48
Women's Division ....	7,379 82
Sephardic Division ...	1,120 93
Youth's Division .....	432 92
Outstate Division ....	2,433 54

Zionist Leaders Scan War Scare Threat

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

LONDON.—The Mediterranean situation is causing the deepest concern in Zionist circles, who fear the grave effect that threatened extension of the war into the Mediterranean may have upon Palestine.

The entire Palestine situation was thoroughly considered at a long conference in which the participants were Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency; members of the London Executive, Chairman David Ben Gurion of the Jerusalem Executive, Treasurer Eliezer Kaplan, and Geneva Representative Nahum Goldman.

Hank Will Make Good — Weiner

By MORRIS WEINER

THE Hot Stove Leagues that have been flourishing from coast to coast throughout the winter can now move their cookie barrels to the bleachers and relax over a hot dog as they watch their favorites cavort on the diamond. The reason's simple enough. In case you haven't heard, folks, baseball's back in town.

One thing looms as all important to us at the opening of the 1940 campaign. It's the question of Hank Greenberg, the six-foot, two-inch Hebrew slugger from the Bronx, and it involves the shift of this slugging behemoth from first base to the asparagus beds in left field. Of course, Hank received a contract calling for $35,000 for the current grind, which may have helped in making up his mind, but, nevertheless, shifting from first to the field was like changing from a well-broken-in pair of brogans to a new set of corn tantalizers.

There's no question as to the lad's hitting prowess. Hank will probably wallop the apple plenty this semester and he's an odds-on favorite to lead both leagues in four-baggers. Will he make good as an outfielder? Our guess is that he will, and we're not doing any wishful thinking.

Our speculations are based on the predictions and prognostications of Harry Heilman—a man who oughta know. Harry—now a baseball broadcaster in Detroit—was one of the best outfielders Detroit ever had. You could go further than that and say that Harry was one of the greatest right-handed hitters in baseball. Harry has watched every move Greenberg has made in practice throughout the spring training sessions and while stopping over at a hotel in New York he told us recently:

"The Tigers have got Hank where he really belongs. Greenberg looks real good to me. He can run plenty fast for a big guy and he has developed the knack of getting under the flies. He's got a great arm and can throw strikes to the plate from deep center. More than that, that boy's no dummy and he'll catch on fast. Furthermore, Hank hasn't got two left feet, like a lotta guys who think they're ball players today.

"The Detroit manager, Baker, likes Hank's attitude about this experiment. Some fellows would get sore or try to dog it if you moved them out of their job like that, but Greenberg is good-natured about the whole thing, thinks it's fun and is getting a big kick as well as thirty-five grand out of the whole thing.

"And if Hank makes good—which I certainly think he'll do—you won't be able to drag him back to first base. The infield's a mad-house any-

FLORENCE SACKS

Passed away May 14, 1938

Time speeds on, two years have passed
Since Death its gloom, its shadow cast.
Within our home were all things bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will;
Her vacant place there's none to fill.
Down here we moan but not in vain,
For up in heaven we'll meet again.
Sadly missed by
Mother, Sister and Brother,
Aunt Rose and Cousin Melvin.

Lodge To Add Auxiliary, Hear Max Kroloff As Two Slates To Be Named For Election

Announcement that two separate slates will be nominated for the approaching election, coupled with the revelation that a national executive of the lodge will soon speak here, and naming of a committee to further the organization of a Ladies' Auxiliary highlighted a week of unusual activity by the Indianapolis B'nai B'rith Lodge.

Breaking with a precedent that has governed elections for many years, the executive committee this week instructed the nominating committee to prepare two complete slates of nominees for all offices except the presidency.

The two lists of nominees are to be publicly announced ten days before the election, set for Monday, June 10, at Kirshbaum Center. Additional nominations may be made from the floor at the time of the election.

Formation of a Ladies' Auxiliary of the lodge was decided on at a meeting Monday night, but was made contingent on enrollment of 50 charter members. ## NOTES ON NEWS

Note to Martin Dies: That tip-off you got about an uprising brewing south of the Rio Grande is correct to a certain extent. . . . Your informant, however, has misled you in one highly important particular. . . . It's not a Communist coup d'etat that's being prepared, but a Nazi putsch for which Hitler's minions have laid an unfortunately quite solid groundwork. . . . And the tip-off to you is part of the plot, to have you encourage the Mexican authorities to get after the Communists in their country and leave the Nazi-minded strictly alone. . . . The Nazis have been having trouble buying radio time in some of the Latin American countries. . . . Less than that has been known to be the prelude to a blitzkrieg. . . . The Vatican has practically given up hope of persuading the European belligerents to make peace—but Cleveland's Abe Pickus is more optimistic. . . . He's still phoning heads of European governments and telling their third undersecretaries how to run their affairs.

CRACKING WISE

Wise-crack of the week—and we hope it isn't just wishful thinking—is the following, current on Broadway: "Churchill seems to have Hitler behind the eight-Bal-kins" . . . To book publisher Ben-net Cerf is credited the gag about the Nazi lecturer who was telling a German audience about the terrible privations the British are suffering during the war. . . . "Why," he said, "in England they are even rationing coffee!" . . . Whereupon a young member of the audience raised his hand and asked: "Please, mister—what's coffee?" . . . From Holland comes this gag, relayed by Leonard Lyons, about a man who reached The Netherlands after a long stay in Naziland. . . . He rushed into the first restaurant he saw, ordered a tremendous steak, and explained to the waiter: "I didn't mind it when we had to eat cats and dogs. . . . I didn't even mind it when we had to eat rats. . . . But when we had to eat ersatz rats that was too much for me."

LEND US YOUR EARS

Washington insiders insist that the next German government will be a monarchy with Prince Philip von Hesse as its titular head and Hermann Goering the actual boss. . . . It sounds like a slight improvement on the present set-up but what we'd like to know is when the change will come. . . . The same sources claim that the change in the British government, with Churchill replacing Chamberlain, will come this May.

JEW AND WAR

GEN. HUGH JOHNSON in his syndicated column, in a most kindly way, suggests that Jews refrain from words or actions that may make it appear that they want America tied up in the European events.

Except for a certain New York broker who has never been heard speaking for Jews (in fact, I didn't know he was a Jew) I have heard no Jew either prominent or obscure say that we ought to get into the war.

I myself (like all other Jews I know) am not Jewish at all in my attitude toward the war. My being Jewish has to do with other things than international politics. I cannot even gloat over Nazis being killed, despite what Nazis have done to Jews.

My sympathy for the allies is founded on the same causes as that of 99 per cent of the other American people. Yes, I hope for an allied victory, I am distressed at every setback of the allies, I rejoiced when the allies broke through the Skaggarak and into the Kattegat, and I have no timidity to restrain me from making my feelings in this matter widely known.

I, together with most other Americans, want the allies to win this war because I believe it is not going to be a good world for anybody to live in if Hitler wins it. It's a hell of a world to live in now but I should be much more afraid of it if Hitler had it.

(What happened recently to the highly civilized and happy countries of Norway and Denmark is sufficient reason for any one not wanting Hitler over the world.)

Like most Americans I have a selfish interest in hoping for allied victory: I fear that we may have to fight Hitler eventually if the allies are brought to their knees and Hitler begins to make passes at parts of the earth which so far he has had to let alone.

It may be selfish for us Americans to say, "Hitler has to be licked but that has got to be done by the British and French boys, not by our sons." Yet it is human nature to look first after our own children. Our children must be kept safe.

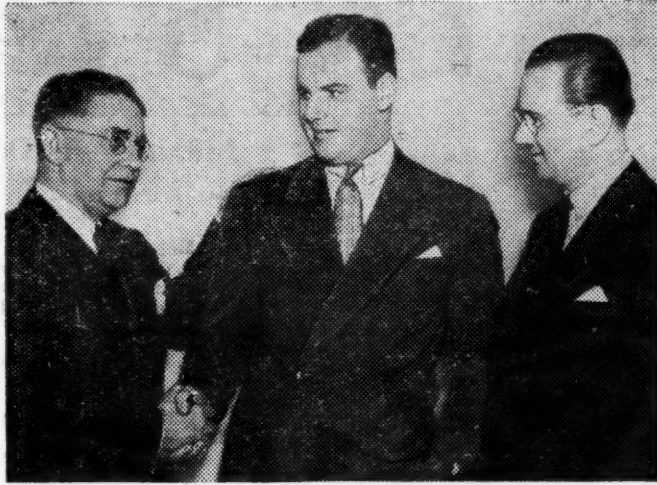

I THINK it is time for Jews to say frankly how they feel about this war because the recriminations of some scamps have made it appear that Jews are war mongers eager to embroil this country in the war and because the understandable timidity of Jews may put us in the light of disinterested on-lookers who don't care which way it goes.

I believe I am expressing the opinions and sentiments of most Jews. These opinions and sentiments are the same as those of all other Americans.

As a well-wisher of the allies I probably should have felt elated at recent reports of German transports full of soldiers being sunk in the Skaggarak. Yet I discovered myself being troubled on account of these German soldiers drowning. They were for the most part, children—boys scarcely out of their teens. They had nothing to do with all this. They would rather have been allowed to keep on playing and working and falling in love.

I guessed that their parents are like me who want my children to grow up to be happy people living

Lehman's Son Joins B'nai B'rith

When Governor Herbert H. Lehman inducted the new "Lehman Class" of more than 1,000 into the B'nai B'rith, Monday evening, May 6, at the Manhattan Center, one of the new members was Peter Lehman, the Governor's son, marking the third generation of Lehman membership in the international fraternity. Peter Lehman is shown here (center) receiving the B'nai B'rith service bar from Harry B. Epstein (left), President, Grand Lodge No. 1, and Col. A. Ralph Steinberg, chairman, Century Membership Campaign.

good lives and I ask of God not much more than that. These are the parents of the drowned soldiers; even at this moment they wait for letters from them wondering why they don't hear from them.

So I am unable to gloat but must reluctantly submit to the horrible necessity which requires that if the gangsters in control of Nazi Germany are to be rubbed out these children must first perish.

(I, in common with most of mankind, should welcome the invention of an aerial bomb or shell which could go direct to Hitler's house or to the houses of any of his hoodlums to whom it was directed.)

I HAVE just been reading what the tired old king of Norway has said. He had been driven from Oslo, had wandered with his government from place to place in Norway, had come to a brief stop in his wanderings. There, interviewed, he said: "I am completely exhausted without sleep or rest. Since I left Oslo I have not taken off my shoes and I have hardly slept. All civilization seems to have come to an end. I cannot understand how such terrible things can happen. I can no longer be sure of anything."

The pathos of the king's simple words is in the sighing of a large portion of mankind that has been put on the spot by these gangsters. The Jews suffered this first, then the Czechs, then the Poles, now the Norwegians. The words of the king were but echoing what had been said millions of times before in the past seven years: "All civilization seems to have come to an end. I cannot understand how such terrible things can happen. I can no longer be sure of anything."

Yes, to see civilization restored is the hope of every Jew as it is of every other decent American. For Jews to be expedient to the point of seeming indifference does them no credit either as Americans or as Jews. We do want the allies to win this war for the sake of every decent thing that mankind has gained on its long upward climb.

The matter of Jews has become minor against the vast calamity with which the Hitler regime has overwhelmed mankind. It happened that the Jews were only the first of the victims, but they are today the least numerous of all the peoples who have been devastated—a handful compared with the mass of afflicted mankind.

I do not apologize for Jews wanting an allied victory. I apologize only for those few of them who like to say that it really doesn't make much difference who wins this war: It is just a war of two imperialisms and it's nothing to them which imperialism wins.

(This sounds a great deal like the Communazi-fostered propaganda. It is the voice of Gestapo and OGPU from the mouths of Jews.)

I hope that fear of being called war mongers by Coughlin will restrain no Jews from honest expression against crime. For a victory of the allies Jews stand with 99 per cent of Americans; against going into the war they stand with the 100 per cent of them.

BOOK REVIEW

Breathless pace, a hero pensive
Keep you reading "Spring Offensive."

TRY NOTE

Author of "Spring Offensive" (Viking Press) is Herbert Clyde Lewis, who at one time in his interesting career was on the staff of the late lamented Jewish Daily Bulletin. . . . Lewis, a first-rate reporter, has again turned out a novel of the sort you can't put down until finished in one sitting. . . . His first novel, "Gentleman Overboard," told the story of a gentleman who falls off a ship in the mid-Pacific and swims and floats and swims apparently without end. . . . And it wasn't until the very last page that you knew whether or not he would be rescued. . . . The tension was amazingly well sustained throughout. . . . Lewis uses exactly the same formula in "Spring Offensive." . . . But the hero this time finds himself marooned in the no-man's-land between the Maginot and Siegfried lines. . . . He is the only living thing there when the Germans launch their long-threatened spring offensive. . . . What Peter Winston, 23-year-old Indianan who joined the British because he was bored with being jobless, thinks and dreams and does while the war is in its full horror breaks all around and over him make some absorbing reading. . . . "Spring Offensive" doesn't quite measure up to "Gentleman Overboard," but it packs a punch that distinctly makes it worth the investment.

OWAWAY

When the Italian liner Conte Biancamano docks in the Dominican Republic with its thirty-six pioneer settlers, a 1-year-old child will steal the show (or will have stolen it, since the ship was scheduled to arrive on May 8, or two days before this item is published). . . . The child was a stowaway. . . . None of the thirty-six pioneers was supposed to have been encumbered by children. . . . No provisions had been made for a child. . . . The Dominican Republic Settlement Association knew nothing of its presence on board the ship until it was far at sea. . . . The parents simply took it along without saying anything to anyone. . . . It will probably be the most photographed and publicized infant in the world when the refugee party lands and is greeted by a battery of reporters, photographers and movie camera men.

WARD

That reward of $1,000,000 offered by Carnegie Institute President Samuel Harden Church for the capture of Hitler prompted Alphonse Katz, the office wag, to remark: "If Church can't get him, Churchill will."

AG

Lou Rittenberg, executive editor of the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia, needed a picture of the Zionist emblem for illustrative purposes. . . . So naturally he called the Zionist Organization. . . . The Z. O. looked around, scratched its collective head, and had to confess it didn't have a picture of the Zionist flag. . . . Ritt asked the J. N. F. and in turn, every Zionist organization in town. . . . Not one had a pix of the Zionist emblem. . . . He finally got one at the Public Library.

SH-MASH

Kurt Katch has been wowing critics and public as the German Consul in the road company of Clare Booth's fine anti-Nazi melodrama, "Margin for Error." . . . Dr. Bernhard Kahn of the J. D. C. recently suffered a broken leg when he was knocked down by an automobile while crossing a Manhattan street at night. Mrs. Kahn narrowly escaped injury. . . . A refugee employed at the Columbia Broadcasting System as a listener to the German short-wave broadcasts recently published an anti-Nazi article in The Nation. The other day he almost choked with excitement as he had his earphones on. The Nazi broadcaster was addressing himself directly to the listener, mentioning him by name and replying to the allegations in his article. . . . It is being said that Dan Frisch, who is close to Rabbi Solomon Goldman, is being talked of as a dark horse for the Z. O. A. presidency. He is expected to get the endorsement of the Ohio Valley Zionist regional convention, to be held in Indianapolis May 17.

Rabbi Perley also announced that the editorial board for the Hillel Banner for the coming year will be headed by Edna Schultz of Terre Haute as editor in chief, Paul Nisenbaum of Indianapolis and Nathan Silverman of Derby, Conn., as business managers, Jeanette Pass of Gary and Justin Frommer of Indianapolis as associate editors, Anne Bloom of Mount Vernon, N. Y., as circulation manager and Morris Brickman of South Bend as sports editor.

The officers who will lead the Student Council next year were installed.

Isadore Feibleman of Indianapolis was the main speaker of the evening. Other members of the Hillel advisory board who attended the dinner were Allan Bloom of Indianapolis and Louis Becovitz and Dr. Nathan Silverstein of Bloomington.

BLOOMINGTON—Last week-end twenty-one high school senior girls from Indiana and Kentucky were guests of the sorority for the annual rush week-end. Included in the entertainment were tours of the new women's dormitories and the university campus.

Final plans have been made for the Mother's Day tea to be held Sunday afternoon, May 12, at the sorority house.

Wednesday, May 8, a formal banquet in honor of the seniors and the installation of the new chapter officers was held. The seniors are Jeanette Fichman, Norma Katz, Edna Levi, Bernice Saperstein and Kaye Steinberg. The guests were the sorority patronesses, Mrs. Louis Becovitz and Mrs. Hedwig Leser, and Mrs. Carrie Efronson, house mother. In memory of their happy "college days" at I. U., the five seniors presented the sorority with a new victrola. This victrola adorns the top of the new radio, which was presented by the Phi Beta Delta Fraternity as a token of fraternal friendship between the two organizations.

Among the guests last week were Mrs. Harry Jackson, Harry Hochman and Seymour Banks of Indianapolis and Mr. and Mrs. G. Slung and family of Seymour.

HOLLYWOOD—Many colleges are now giving courses on the art of movie making, but New York U. tops them all with a four-year course in all the branches of film production. Soon this town will be swarming with D. H.'s (Doctors of Hollywood). And many a pallid picture will grow sicker under the doctor's care. . . . for show business is not a science. . . . can best be learned in the experimental School of Hard Knocks.

FRIDAY, MAY 10, 1940

The Editor's Chair:

I have placed in nomination for the board of the Jewish Community Center Association, three names. Although the persons whom I have nominated are qualified and capable, my reason for drawing up the proper petitions, and then securing the signatures of five J. C. C. A. members, was entirely separate from these considerations.

Had these names not been presented, the annual meeting would have had before it the names of nine persons for election to the board, nine persons named by the nominating committee. As a result, since there were no alternatives, there actually would have been no election. Now there will be an election, and there will be at least twelve names from which to fill the nine vacancies. (In all twelve people are being elected, but as I understand it, three of these are automatically placed on the board by the Jewish Welfare Fund and do not have to go through an election at all.)

However, my candidates are highly qualified. They are Jack Kammins, president of the B'nai B'rith; Josh Fineberg, who has been president of everything in the Jewish youth field in Indiana, and Burton Kohn, who is retiring president of the Temple Young People's League.

You will notice that these are young men; they are at an age when they should be able to deal intelligently with the problems of the young people who attend Kirshbaum Center.

I should say here that I think all the names brought out by the nominating committee are capable and intelligent, although it is well known that several of the persons nominated did not attend one board meeting last year, and one person I think hasn't been in attendance for three years. Had there been more than the nine names submitted, I would not even have presented any of my own. I am interested only in seeing that this organization of which I am a member is governed under the fullest democracy.

A LETTER TO PARENTS

To the Editor:

This week we'll be marking Mother's Day, or Parents' Day, as it's becoming more widely known. Your son and daughter will be bringing you flowers, candy or some other little gift, and you'll be happy to have this extra bit of affection shown for you. But the day also has another purpose. It gives you a chance to think about your responsibilities to your children. I'm interested in your children too—very much so. In fact, I'm making it my life work. I'm interested in everything about your children, but mainly in their careers. So do you mind if I draw up a chair and schmoos a little while?

Your son will have to make a (Continued in Last Column.)

B'nai B'rith To Present Two Slates

DECISION of the Indianapolis Lodge of B'nai B'rith to present two slates to the members for election of officers for the ensuing year deserves the very highest commendation. Although the constitution of the order prevents the presentation of two names for the office of president, at least two names will be offered for every other office in the lodge. In addition, nominations may be offered from the floor.

It is obvious what the new move will mean. Election night, which this year has been set for Monday, June 10, will be one of the most important in the year, and where heretofore attendance at this meeting was more or less perfunctory, the June meeting should provide enough fireworks and interest to carry right over through the summer until the first fall meeting. And if anyone has any misgiving about a real contest, then his misgivings are against democracy and the democratic procedure.

As far as this paper is concerned, the new move of the B'nai B'rith tops one of the finest years in recent history of the local lodge. The new move, this paper believes, deserves national publicity, for it is a perfect indication of a growing demand within the lodge itself for more democracy in Jewish organization life.

Should Givers, Amounts Be Published

THERE has always been a division of opinion in the community as to the advisability of publication of the list of contributors to the Jewish Welfare Fund and the amounts contributed. Publication, of course, serves two purposes. It would give recognition to those who fulfill their obligations to the Welfare Fund, and, at the same time, it would be a deterrent to those who, well able to give handsomely, include themselves somewhere in the environs of the $25 group, knowing that their niggardliness and the hypocrisy will never be known.

Those who object to publication have many good reasons on their side. As a compromise, the procedure followed in Louisville might be adopted. A list of all contributors is gotten up in pamphlet form and mailed to all contributors. That one person in Louisville who gave $5 two years ago when he could well afford more gave $250 this year is a sample of the effect of publication on many who are content to allow others to carry their burdens.

Speaking at the report meeting Monday, Louis J. Borinstein, drive chairman, declared that the time will be soon at hand when those who fail to respond to the drive in amounts their income warrants will be ostracized socially and told to associate with those of their own kind who refuse to acknowledge their obligations. This indicates that there is a local problem. The Post believes that publication of a dignified pamphlet might be the solution.

Rabbi Cohen's Refusal Justified

AMERICAN Jewish history thrills at the not too infrequent episodes of leaders of American Jewry standing up for their rights, even when it involved the government and high national officials themselves. Once when General Grant had issued an order prohibiting Jews from certain sections occupied by the Union troops, three separate delegations, one from Paducah, Ky., one from Louisville and one from Cincinnati, were en route all at the same time to Washington to protest to Abraham Lincoln against the injustice. That in almost all these cases, honest, upright and forthwith protest of the then almost insignificant Jewish population was invariably effective should serve as a precedent for present-day Jewish leaders.

Anyone conversant with this history must admire Rabbi J. X. Cohen, who is president of the New York board of Jewish ministers, in his refusal of an invitation of the International Business Machine Corporation to take part in its program for the promotion of peace at the World's Fair on May 13. Rabbi Cohen's full letter to Thomas T. Watson, president of the corporation, will be reprinted in the "Current Comment" next week.

Some readers of this paper believe that a Jew is someone neither to be seen nor heard. As far as this paper is concerned, Rabbi Cohen has its full and solid support when he says:

"Despite the auspices under which the meeting is to be held, as a self-respecting American citizen and rabbi, I cannot bring myself to participate therein, although it be held in the putative interests of peace, seeing that its dominant figure is one who continues to hold a Hitler decoration, and by that token gives silent assent to all that Nazism has wrought of wrong and crime upon humanity."

Hank Will Make Good

way on any ball club. You last longer in the outfield where you get a little shade and where the guys don't bother you so much. I know. I lived there for years when I was a Tiger and it was a nice peaceful place. I think Hank'll be very happy there, once he gets accustomed to the suburban surroundings."

STAN FRANK SAYS

Stan Frank, author of that excellent book, "Jews in Sports," and scribbler of many fine features for the Saturday Evening Post, dropped us a line from the southland some time ago which we've been saving for just such an occasion. Stan, who does a daily stint for the New York Post, had this to say of the Tiger experiment:

"Hank will be an outstanding star during the 1940 season. Mind you, I'm talking of Greenberg as a fielder and not as a hitter. However, here's a little anecdote you might use for the column. It's about Greenberg in the field. I was watching Hank in his new outfield role against the Dodgers recently—you know, I'm stuck with the Flatbush flock—and while the guy admits he's as jittery as a June bride, he looks like a veterans out there on the picket line.

"Mind you, he was fielding against National League hitters—a kind of slugger entirely new to a brand new American League outfielder. Likewise, he had Dick Bartell, the new shortstop for the Tigers, tipping him off on how to play the various batsmen. In fact, Rowdy Richard, who has a voice like a Fulton Fish Market peddler, never stopped yammering. He had Hank ragged out there in the broiling sun and he had Greenberg's tongue hanging down to his belt before they were through. Hank found out later that Dick was making him do an awful lot of unnecessary work and galloping around, but the infielder took this hazing without a squawk and toiled as ardently as the rawest rookie. Mind you, Hank never played the outfield before, but the guy's a natural born player and he'll make good. Sincerely, Stan."

WHAT GREENBERG SAYS

Hank told Del Baker after a few sessions in the daisy plantation: "I'm like the fellow who said he could play the violin because he never tried. Give me a whirl at it. Who knows? I may even get to like it out there. They tell me it's very restful and the boys last longer than us infielders because they don't get all the wear and tear. Put York on first base with my blessing and if there's anything he wants to know about the job I'll teach it to him with my blessings. But be patient with me, will you, because I'm a brand new boy in that position and I'll probably be scared silly until I get used to it."

If good wishes mean anything, Hank's riding the crest with an entire nation behind him. They like the big fellow and they're rooting that he makes good. Even the Dodger fans are pulling for the Bronx Bambino and what is more the Philly rooters are keeping their fingers crossed too. It goes without saying that the big boy has our blessing and we'll be back with a story about Hank along about the middle of the stretch.

Freedom of the Press

lot of decisions as he grows up just as you've had to make them. But I don't know of any that be more important to his future happiness than choosing the right occupation. After he gets out of school, he'll be spending most of the day at his job and he'll probably be "married" to it for practically the rest of his life. And your daughter, too, may work before she finds her man and perhaps after that.

Now let's see what your children will have to do in choosing a career. First, they'll have to figure out what this world of work is all about. And that's a whole lot tougher than it used to be, when you stop to realize that the United States census lists about 20,000 different jobs. Of course, they can only hope to get a general idea as to what these are all about. But after a while this list ought to be boiled down to the half dozen or so occupations that attract them most. And these few occupations should be studied forward and backward.

Here are some of the questions that your children should ask themselves about each of the occupations that have caught their eye: Just how important is this work in my country and community? What would be doing at this job? Where would I do my work, indoors or outdoors, and what would the conditions of work be like? Would it bring me into contact with people of what kind of people would they be? How would it affect my health? Will they need me as workers in this field about the time that I get out of school? Does it look as if the field is growing or shrinking in the long run? How can I get started in this work? And when I have the job, what are the chances of getting ahead? About how much can I expect to earn at the start and how much later on? Is the work steady or will there be layoffs or slack seasons? What sort of fellow is it that makes good at this job? What kind of mind is needed for this work? Any particular health or physical requirements? What about personality? Do I have any special ability or knack for doing things? What general education and what special training does the occupation call for? How can I get this preparation, how long will it take and how much will it cost? What are the advantages and the disadvantages of the work? Do Jews have any trouble getting training in the field? Is there any prejudice against Jews among employers or workers?

Those are a lot of questions all right. So now you'll probably want to ask me one. Where can you find out how to answer them? Well, the B'nai B'rith Vocational Service Bureau and other organizations have plenty of interesting pamphlets that will tell you and your children what's what about many occupations. I'll be glad to send you a list of these publications if you'll drop me a line at 1003 K Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Then people who are in a particular line of work can give you their opinion as to what it's like. Visits to stores, factories and offices help and so do after-school and summer jobs.
